

Beat the Vegas Heat

Red Square Vodka Vault

As everyone knows, vodka is best served ice cold. Mandalay Bay's Russian-themed restaurant and bar Red Square dedicates a room exclusively to the spirit. In the Vodka Vault the thermostat stays at 0-degrees Fahrenheit. You can't miss Red Square as it has a headless statute of Lenin outside. A replica of the former leader's noggin rests inside the opulent Vodka Vault.

To stay warm, and keep your Russki look going, don the faux fur jacket that hosts hand you so you stay comfortable while sipping vodka infusions, signature cocktails or just a properly made, classic martini. Shots of the elite vodkas start at $14, but hardcore vodka enthusiasts can try some exclusive ones for up to $300 a shot – though we imagine that you sip those rather than shoot those.